Description

Players take the role of a pony express rider and attempt to gain 190 station points by completing their routes. Each station point is worth a variable amount of points, and contains an interesting fact about the pony express. Along the way, opponents can put hazard cards in front of the players that can only be overcome by solution cards.

Game was created to be part of the Smithsonian Institution Odyssey for children. A book by the same name is available separately.

The game includes rules and 52 playing cards.
